

EVACUATION OF NANKING BY AMERICANS BEGUN

Check-Up Shows Only About 20 Citizens of U. S. Are Unaccounted For

TWO BRITISHERS KILLED

Looted; Some Americans'
Properties Destroyed

SHANGHAI, March 26.—Evacuation of Americans from Nanking was proceeding, according to the latest advices available today, and it was reported that as far as the present check-up shows there are probably not more than twenty Americans yet unaccounted for. Many of these may have left Nanking prior to Thursday's outrages.

The one known American killed is Vice-Chancellor Williams, of Nanking University. Two British subjects are reported killed and a score are still unaccounted for. One Japanese was killed.

An Italian priest, Rev. Yanara, and a French priest, Rev. Dugont, are reported to have been murdered in Nanking and their missions looted.

With the evacuation of the foreigners having begun, attention on the Nanking situation now turns to the Chinese themselves. There are some fears expressed here that there may be a wide split within the Chinese ranks over the incidents which have occurred and which have been directly attributed to the Cantonese. Chiang Kai Shek, military leader of the Cantonese and of the more conservative branch of the Nationalist movement, is reported today at Lungwha preparing to proceed to Nanking to assure the protection of foreigners. At the same time there is a report that the radical faction has summoned M. Borodin, Russian advisor to Nanking. If these two men meet in Nanking there are grave dangers of a clash between the two which may lead to dire results to the Nationalist movement.

Former Convict Again Held By The Authorities

Charles Wagner, recently discharged from the Eastern Penitentiary, walked into Morrisville Thursday and was shortly thereafter rescued from entanglement with the law when Chief of Police Cooper paid a 55-cent restaurant bill for him. Wagner had eaten a meal and had then told the restaurateur that he was broke and could not pay. Chief Cooper paid for the meal and ordered Wagner to leave the town.

Wagner later had a hair-cut and shave at the barber shop of George Newman, in Morrisville, and told Newman to charge it to Chief Cooper. Newman called in Officer Rose and Wagner was arrested. He was committed to the Doylestown Jail by Justice of the Peace Kunsman.

Wagner served a long term in the Eastern Penitentiary for burning the barn on the Samuel Moon Estate, near Morrisville. He was recently released.

Following the business meeting a box social was held in the dining room of the Poole home. The table was beautifully spread and each participant paid twenty-five cents for a box of sandwiches. Hot coffee and dessert were furnished by the hostess. A sum of four dollars and twenty-five cents was realized which was immediately entered in the treasury toward the charitable work, for which this class deserves great credit.

Seventeen members of the class with a number of friends attended the meeting at Mrs. Poole's home.

BELIEVE ILLICK FAMILY IS SAFE IN CHINA

Conflicting Reports, However,
Create Some Anxiety For Their Welfare

MAY BE ON WARSHIP

Conflicting reports emanating out of the war-stricken territory in the vicinity of Nanking, China, have created more or less apprehension as to the safety of the group of American missionaries.

Included in the group are the Rev. and Mrs. J. Theron Illick and their two small sons, Roland and Paul, who have been in China for a period of several years.

The Rev. Illick is the son of Mrs. Helen and the late Rev. Hiram J. Illick, of Hulmeville. Several years ago he and his wife left the United States for the Orient, and for the past few years have been located at Nanking, Mr. Illick instructing classes at the University of Nanking.

Their two small sons were born in China; and during the year 1925 the four spent a several months' furlough at the home of Mrs. Helen Illick, in Hulmeville.

It was stated yesterday by members of the Illick family that no word had been received from the Rev. Illick since three weeks ago; but during the past few days a message had been received through the New York office of the Board of Foreign Missions relative to the fact that the missionary and his family were safe.

It is thought, because of the reception of repeated reports to the Government, that the Rev. Illick and family are on board one of the warships which were hurried to the scene for the purpose of rescuing the missionaries and non-combatants.

Surprise Farewell Is Given To Miss Dixon

The monthly meeting of Sunday School Class No. 11, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, took place at the home of Mrs. George Miller, of Cedar street, on Thursday evening.

After the regular business was transacted, a surprise farewell party was given in honor of Miss Martha Dixon, one of the members of the class, who will soon sever her connections with the class, when she will move to Frankford, Pa., on April 1st.

The remainder of the evening was spent playing various games. There were three guessing games; and prizes were awarded to Miss Emma Smith and Miss Jean Estep. Music and singing was also enjoyed.

At a late hour the guests were invited to the dining room, where a delightful supper was served, consisting of boiled ham, salad, rolls, butter, cheese, olives, fudge, salted peanuts, home-made cake and ice cream.

While seated at the table the teacher of the class, Mrs. George Miller, presented Miss Dixon with a beautiful twenty-three-piece tea-set, a gift from the class.

The guests then departed for their homes, after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

Those present were:

The Misses Martha Dixon, Esther Estep, Florence Hibbs, Dorothy Jackson, Jean Estep, Helen Jones, Beatrice Lovett, Betty Barton, Mrs. Frances Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. George Miller.

POOL TOURNAMENT

The final of the 1,200-point game will be played Wednesday evening.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Bruden, of 563 Swain street, had as Wednesday guests, Mrs. Clarence Deal and son, Lawrence, of Lambertville, N. J., and Mrs. Thomas Richardson and baby, Selma, of Trenton, N. J.

Observe Centenary of Death Of Ludwig Van Beethoven, Composer

His Start Was A Very Humble One, But His Rise To Fame
Was Rapid and Lasting — His Compositions
Are Among Greatest of the Day

THE centenary of the death of Ludwig Van Beethoven is being observed in the United States this week. Compositions of the great composer are being given over the radio, at church services and by all lovers of music.

A reader of the Courier and one much interested in music contributes the following:

Ludwig Van Beethoven was born at Bonn, Germany, on December 16, 1770. He was also a German composer, the greatest master of the classical school. In 1784 he was appointed assistant court organist with a salary of seventy-five dollars per month. In 1787 the Elector Max Franz advanced him his expenses for a trip to Vienna. It was there he met Mozart, who was so surprised by the boy's power and improvisation that, stepping softly into the next room, he whispered to his friends: "Mark him well; some day he will make a stir in the world."

Beethoven was then summoned to his mother's death bed, whose eventual loss was a severe blow to him. His father, shiftless and a drunkard, had been a hard taskmaster, but his mother had been kind and gentle—"my best friend," he calls her in one of his letters. At this time Beethoven began to teach and also to appear before the public. In 1792 Elector Max Franz again paid the expenses of Beethoven to Vienna, where he became a pupil of Haydn and Albrechtsberger in theory and compositions, and of Schuppanzigh on the violin.

Under Haydn he studied Fux's "Gradus ad Parnassum," and there exist over two hundred of Beethoven's exercises only forty-two of which Haydn corrected. Beethoven afterwards asserted he had learned nothing from Haydn, Haydn having severely criticised his three trios (Opus 1)—at least one of which, the C minor, is a masterpiece. His friend and pupil, Ferdinand Ries, relates that he once called the composer's attention to consecutive fifths in the C minor quartet, and in the discussion which followed enumerated various theories who forbade them. "They have forbidden them!" cried Beethoven. "Well, I allow them." He now continued that his genius had made him the equal of any one, but before he reached middle age he became stone deaf.

Beethoven was famous as a pianist.

He made his debut in Vienna in 1795, playing his "C Major Concerto," which created a great impression, in fact, almost a furor. At this time his genius was unfolding itself slowly and among other works he had completed, other than the trios already mentioned, were the first set of piano-forte sonatas, the "Sonata Pathétique," the six quartets dedicated to Prince Von Lobkowitz, and most important of all his First Symphony. Beethoven as a composer did not shake music out of his sleeves (as for instance did Schubert), but everything he composed was carefully thought out, studied and tested.

From 1800 to 1804 Beethoven gave evidence of unsurpassed fortitude in composing the so-called "Moonlight Sonata," the "Second Symphony," the "Kreutzer Sonata," for violin and piano; the "Eroica Symphony 3rd," the "Waldstein" and "Appassionata" sonatas and in 1805 his wonderful opera, "Fidelio."

Although the Viennese neglected Beethoven as they did Mozart and Schubert still he was far from being overlooked. He found frequent opportunities to bring his work forward at private and public concerts, and his renown as a pianist was such that in spite of his deafness, he was forced to appear in concerts as a solo player until 1813.

The name Beethoven stands for the highest achievements in the classical symphonic, or, as it is generally known sonata form. From the point at which Haydn and Mozart left the symphony, he developed it to a further and extraordinary degree. He added the coda, and seemed to make all the characters work out plainer.

Before Beethoven the classical schools had no very great development nor did Beethoven speak the last word so far as the classical school is concerned. The importance of Beethoven's existence and work in the musical world may be emphasized in that it lies wholly in the warmth and life with which he endowed the sonata; a creation of his very own especially as found in the orchestral symphony; and the fact that when he passed away, largely through his diligence, an orchestra had been developed capable of responding to each and every modern demand.

Beethoven died at Lubeck in the year of our Lord 1827.

LAND LOTTERY AROUSES YORK BUSINESS MEN

Chamber of Commerce Reports Operation of Such To Trade Commission

OTHER STATE NOTES

YORK, Pa., March 26 (I.N.S.)—Alleged sharp practice on the part of promoters of certain real estate developments in the vicinity of Baltimore, Md., through which it is claimed many Pennsylvanians have been victimized, has been brought to the attention of the federal trade commission at Washington by the York Chamber of Commerce. The promoters' scheme, while within the law, local authorities say, is working hardship upon the whole fall victims to it.

The promotion scheme is said to have been conducted in the vicinity of Lutherville and Timonium, Md., for the past several years.

The promoters, it is claimed, work up a "sucker list" by going to county fairs and offering free chances on a building lot. All the "prospects" has to do is put his name and address on a card. The farm product show at Harrisburg last month was the latest exhibition to have been worked by the agents of the realty concern.

It appears that every person who signs a card "wins a lot." Having won the lot the person is notified of his "rare luck" by a letter from the promoters, requesting that he present himself to be shown his prize and be prepared to pay from $37.50 to $57.50 "to cover the cost of transferring the deed." It is claimed that the money in many instances is far in excess of the value of the lot "won" which usually fronts on some swamp unfitted for building or improvement purposes.

From far points in Pennsylvania farmers who have signed the cards and who have "won" the lots have come to York, where the company maintains an office, to claim their winnings, thus adding the expense of traveling to the price of "their lots."

Several efforts have been made here to discourage the practice of offering the "free lots" as a means of boosting real estate developments.

Because the concern conducting the land lottery is operating in two States, the York Chamber of Commerce has reported the matter to the Federal Trade Commission, believing it to be interstate commerce.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS END SEASON IN VICTORY

Local Quintet Defeats Temple
Five by Score of 15 to 9

BOYS' TEAM DEFEATED

Last evening the Bristol high school girls' basketball team defeated Temple High by the score of 15 to 9. It was a fitting climax to the 1926-27 season which was quite successful for the local girls.

The game was well played by both teams.

Bristol took the lead at the start and held Temple scoreless until the second quarter. The score at half-time was eleven to five, Bristol's favor.

Temple put a scare into the Bristol team at the start of the half by making the score 11 to 9, but Pope received the ball and by a fast pivot and dribble made the basket. Neither team did much scoring from then on. Pope made another goal to end the scoring. Bergey and Strumfelds did the usual stalling at center and side-center. Pope played her usual good game and was the high scorer with twelve points. It was Pope's and Bergey's last game under the colors of the Cardinal and Gray.

Last evening in one of the best games played on the local floor this season Temple High School of Philadelphia defeated Bristol by the score of 26 to 22.

It was a fast and interesting game that just sizzled with excitement in the last few minutes. Both teams played well. Temple, however, had an edge in the shooting of fouls. Had Bristol made better use of their opportunities they might have won the game.

At the start of the game both teams played a close guarding game, until Strumfelds found an opening and made the basket from beyond the foul line. Opatky followed with a pretty shot from the side. Hardy added another quickly, to give Bristol a six to nothing advantage. Temple, however, began to score, but Bristol always kept a small lead until at half time the score was 15 to 10 in Bristol's favor.

At the start of the half Temple played better and both teams made a few points. Temple in the last quarter brought the score 19 all. Then the excitement began, when Hardy made a very pretty field goal from the side of the floor. Temple soon scored a field goal, followed with a foul goal. Bristol got another foul and Temple made another field goal to make the score: Temple, 26; Bristol, 22.

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 26.—Miscellaneous business, non-support cases, divorce and damage suits were filed and started in the various courts of Bucks County.

In Court of Quarter Sessions there was a hearing in the desertion and non-support case of Clarence Sauder, of Perkasio. Judge Ryan directed that Sauder pay $5 a week toward the support of his wife and child and give security in the sum of $300 to comply with the order.

The petition of the electors of Bridgeton township was presented in Quarter Sessions asking for the appointment of a township auditor to succeed Mahlon Leichler, deceased. A petition of the supervisors of Plumstead township, asking for leave to levy a tax of fifteen mills was filed. The petition of supervisors of Bedminster township for an order authorizing the supervisors to levy a road tax of 15 mills, was filed.

Action in trespass was filed in the Court of Common Pleas by Harry Knecht against James R. Bailey. Action in trespass was also filed by Matthew Hockl against James R. Bailey.

Charging that he beat her and knocked her down and later deserted her, Elsie Mae McGonigal, of Quakertown, through her attorney, Calvin F. Heckler, of Quakertown, has started divorce proceedings against her husband, Joseph McGonigal, whose address is unknown. The libellant and respondent were married at Flourtown, Montgomery county, February 14, 1918.

Damages to the extent of $15,000 is asked in a suit brought by Esther Jane Stoneback, of Perkasio, and her husband, Allen Stoneback, against Frederick H. Lewis, of 6355 Lancaster avenue, Philadelphia. The action follows an automobile collision along the Bethlehem pike on May 26, 1926, when Mrs. Stoneback was riding in an automobile owned and operated by John J. Roberts. It is alleged that the automobile of the defendant, Lewis, crashed into the Stoneback car and painfully injured the occupants, one of whom was Mrs. Stoneback. The sum of $10,000 is asked by Mrs. Stoneback and $5,000 is asked by her husband. Suit was brought by Grim & Grim, Perkasio attorneys.

The annual report of the board of visitors to the Bucks County Home was filed in the Court of Quarter Sessions by Ellen H. Todd, Dr. Joseph deB. Abbott, Thed Pershing and Mrs. John S. Pretz. The report follows:

"Your board of visitors to the County Home made three visits during the year of 1926. Steward Kriebel and Mrs. Kriebel have performed their duties in a thoroughly satisfactory manner and all things for which they are responsible are in good shape.

"We feel that Mrs. Roberts, the trained nurse, has more to do in her department than should be required of one person and would suggest that she be given an assistant.

"Once more we must urge that the widows and doors of the main building and of the men's building be adequately screened. The present screens are useless and flies carry on uninterrupted traffic in filth and disease, between the kitchen, dining room, toilet rooms and manure pile."

"POLICING" THE DRAMA

New York's "uplifting" raid on Broadway has accomplished, to date, only the suppression of the most artistic and sincere of the three plays prosecuted. Producers of the other two productions have reaped fortunes from the advertising given their shows by police raids but the producer of the third took it off the "boards," because members of the cast feared imprisonment and because of pressure from powerful theatrical interests anxious to avert censorship of the stage.

An actor or actress actually in jail because of a play for the production of which neither he nor she was responsible would furnish a mighty poor argument for this particular method of stage-cleaning.
Public sentiment would never approve jailing or even fining members of the cast who had no share in the management. One such case would react disastrously against the police-and-court process of purification.

On the other hand, the very clumsiness of this drastic last resort, which is always there if all else fails, should make the whole theatrical profession more than ever determined to find some way of keeping the rot-for-rot's-sake kind of play off the stage. Here is a plain case where prevention is worth any amount of heavy-handed cure.

"Going bad one worse" is the policy that has brought the stage to the brink of ruinous censorship,
but censorship and public standards of stage morals operate in the same manner. The censor fails because he condemns one play because it is not as "pure" as another and then "cuts" the third because it is more questionable than a fourth,
and so on. And the standards among theatre-goers range all the way from those to whom the theater itself is sinful to those who adopt the philosophy that "to the pure all things are pure."

If an old man is rich enough he can purchase a young wife; but if he can purchase her, she isn't worth much.

Some find college work easy because they have wonderful brains,
and some because they have wonderful biceps.

You never get the full meaning of efficiency until you observe a small boy placing himself around ice cream cones.

One of the best things to take to cure that important feeling is an honest inventory of the mental stock on hand.

Live and learn—how to live.

A boy of 14 may legally marry

Easter Sunday in 1930 will fall on April 20. If you want to see this drive your auto carefully.

The first season a debutante is

is made into wine, and the third season turns to vinegar.

that can be made into HOMES

Two-story brick residences containing six rooms and bath. All newly papered and painted throughout. Conveniences which are to be found in any modern house today—electricity, gas, hot air heater, water. Front porches of ample size and large bay-windows on second floor. A rear yard just big enough to be kept neat and attractive. With the touch of a housewife these dwellings can be made into real homes of comfort. Rents are very moderate.
Location is good.

SYNOPSIS

John Ballard, a strapping youngster, leaves his native town of Vennor to work his way through college. He has been left poor by the same unkind fate that deprived him of his father, in a railroad crossing accident under circumstances which preclude a suit, and his mother, who died of grief, Phil Hardin, son of the President of the road which deprived John of fortune and family, leaves town on the same train, also bound for college.
He is friendly, but John knows full well the gap between himself, a poor working student, and Phil, a wealthy idler.

CHAPTER I—Continued

At Newton things went much as John thought they would. He had arranged to find certain work before he went to college at all;
could not have gone, even with the scholarship he had won, unless he had been sure of earning some money.

Of Phil, save for an occasional glimpse in a classroom, he saw nothing. Phil fell, at once, into a fast set. In college men form groups, as they do in any other social organization, and Phil's friends in his class had been made, largely, during his preparatory school days. As a matter of course Phil was asked to join the leading fraternity.

Phil was, and with reason, popular in college. He was good looking. He had money, and spent it freely and liberally. He had the fastest car belonging to any stu-

"Look here—you've got the idea all wrong," he told John.

dent, and was always game for a trip to town or to some nearby roadhouse. He sang well, and played the banjo like a professional; consequently he made the musical club at once, and went on all its trips.

Phil found his studies easy, also
—too easy, indeed, for his own good. He learned that he could cut classes and neglect his work, and still, by concentrating for a few days near the end of term,
make up for lost time and come through his examinations with dying colors. Life, for Phil, because of his very cleverness and facility, became a round of pleasure; he had nothing to make him take it seriously. Occasionally a professor warned him that the day of reckoning was bound to come;
that, sooner or later, he must settle down to work. But, though he always listened respectfully, he laughed as soon as he was with his cronies again.

John, on the other hand, had to work hard. He was proud; he would accept no hospitality he could not return. Invited to join a fraternity, he refused—and was too proud, mistakenly, to say that it was because he was too poor.
Lacking, almost entirely, the superficial cleverness of Phil, it was not always easy for John to keep up with his work. He always passed, but he had to plod to do it. And he made few friends—
but those he did make were good ones.

Only in his senior year did John finally go out for football. In that year football at Newton was at a low ebb. The big game with Marston had been lost for three years in succession; the material this year was poor and another disastrous season loomed. And John, by this time, had found better jobs. He was just able to spare the time.

To the surprise of coaches and students John, from the first, made good. Not a brilliant player he supplied an element of steadiness badly needed in the line, and in the final game of the year he rose to great heights. It was he who in the last minute of play, blocked a Marston kick and fell on the ball
a yard from the goal line, so that the touchdown which followed,
winning the game, was really due to him. For the first time in nearly four years the whole college
rang with his name.

THREE BIG SHOWS IN EVENING

Are You Reading?

A Local Newspaper

Such as the Courier. If not you are not informed upon what is happening in Bristol and surrounding community. Events are daily occurring in the borough which are of interest to you. These are reported each day and make interesting reading.

School Board Meetings:

Staff men cover monthly meetings of the Bristol School Board, a thing not done by any other local newspaper.

Real Estate Transfers:

Real Estate transfers as they are recorded at Doylestown are printed weekly in the Courier. This is a feature which no other newspaper published in lower Bucks county carries.

Council Proceedings:

Borough Council meetings are covered by staff reporters and given more complete and in fuller detail in the Courier than in any other paper.

Advertisements:

The Courier dominates the local advertising field. More advertisements of local merchants are carried in the Courier columns than those of any other local newspaper. There is more interesting news in the advertisements in addition to the savings which result from a constant reading of them.

Nearby Towns:

Every nearby town has its news events set forth in the Courier by correspondents who keep in constant touch with this newspaper. Frequent news letters are mailed, and "spot" news is telephoned. Read the letters from Edgely, Tullytown, Croydon, Hulmeville, Parkland, Langhorne, Fallsington.

Foreign News:

Comes to the Courier daily through International News Service—one of the largest news gathering organizations in the world, which has for its motto: "Get the News First, But First Get It Right."

County News:

The Courier has a staff correspondent at Doylestown who faithfully reports all matters of county-wide interest; full and complete reports of sessions of the various courts, resume of events as they occur in the county offices.

Fiction:

Serial stories are published in generous installments daily.

Sports:

Bowling results, basketball games and local sports are fully covered in reports published in the Courier.

BILLY MOFFO FIGHTS TO DRAW

Fighting one of the best bouts of his career, Billy Moffo held Ray Romano to a draw. Moffo's southpaw jab kept the South African away. Moffo was credited with four rounds, the South African two, and the other two were even. At the end of the eighth round the judges disagreed and Referee Spud Murphy declared the bout a draw. The local boy weighing 140 pounds, held a half-pound advantage.

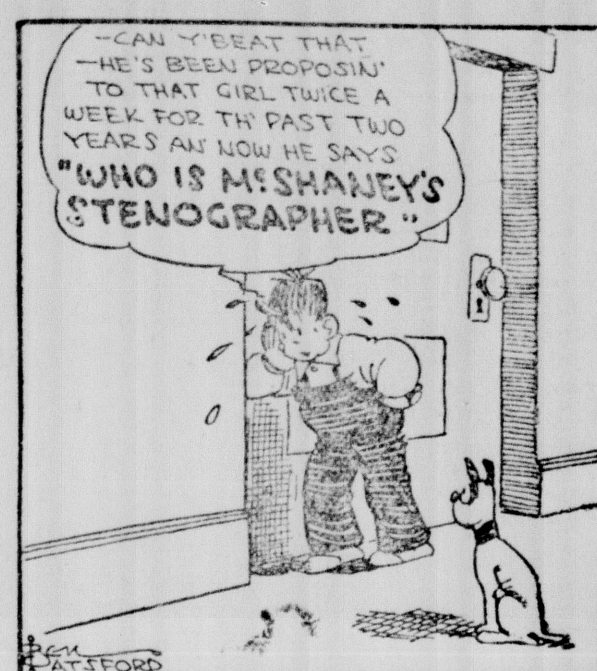

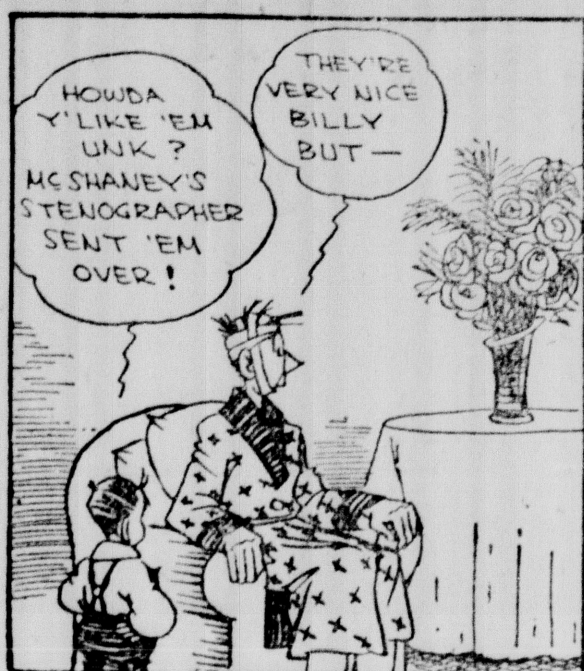

Tendered Surprise On Birthday Anniversary

A family reunion was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Hannah Force, of 344 Dorrance street, in compliment to Mrs. Force, whose birthday anniversary occurred on that day.

The affair was a complete surprise to the astonished guest of honor, who was presented with many lovely gifts, as reminders of the occasion.

The dining room was gaily decked in blue and white festoons, which were gracefully draped about the room. The table bore a huge birthday cake with "Mother," "Grandmother," and "Great-Grandmother" printed upon the icing.

BILLY'S UNCLE

Supper was served to thirty-five guests, who were: Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson and daughter Hazel, of Auburn, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Douglass, and daughter Isabel; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brooks, and son Douglas; and Mr. Leonard Drury, of Ambler, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ridge, and family; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Myers, and family; and Mrs. Anna D. Myers, of Langhorne, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson, Jr., and son "Billy," of Holmesburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. William Force, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Force, and son Vincent; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Milnor, and family; Mrs. Hannah Force and son, and Mr. John Black, of Bristol.

TRENT THEATRE

The dramatic sensation of the season is at hand. "Rain," the world famous success, will be presented next week beginning Monday, March 28th, by the Trent Theatre Stock Company at the Trent Theatre, Trenton, with matinees Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday.

This bare announcement will be enough to send a thrill of anticipation through every playgoer. After waiting patiently for several months, the dramatic hit of the century has finally been made available for a few chosen toponch stock companies. The release of "Rain" naturally called for a staggering royalty, which was cheerfully paid. "Rain" is founded on the story, "Miss Sadie Thompson," by W. Somerset Maugham. It is a play at once original, engrossing, picturesque and fascinating, with its locale laid in the colorful South Seas. The chief character is a girl of the underworld who stops off at the island to transfer to another steamer. The Trent company takes pleasure in filling out of town orders for seat reservations. There will be no advance in prices next week despite the enormous cost of producing "Rain."

"CONNIE," UNDECIDED, HAS'N'T FILLED POSITIONS

By Davis J. Walsh
I. N. S. Sports Editor
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Mar. 26.—Neither Ty Cobb nor Eddie Collins will start the season in regular positions with the Philadelphia Athletics unless they can prove they are better men than men now sitting on the bench more or less by courtesy. Connie Mack intimated to the writer today. He made the inference by candidly admitting that to date "some of last year's team have looked better" than several of the human luxuries he acquired during the winter at hot-house prices.

Connie named no names but I was able to learn that one of the pick-me-ups who hasn't looked so good is Eddie Collins and that one of the hangovers who has startled the natives is Max Bishop. It is an excellent 3 to 1 bet that Bishop and not Collins will be the regular second baseman of the club before the campaign goes too far.

Collins, they say, can't cover a fraction of an inch around second base. Cobb hasn't been hitting. Neither has Dudley Brannom, scion of wealth from Enid, Okla., via Kansas City, nor Joe Boley, the expensive young man from Baltimore. They still are on the line up but no one is guaranteeing how long, least of all Connie Mack.

"I haven't picked my club at all," he said today. "It is early to pass judgment and, therefore, I will content myself with saying that I had a good ball club last year and that some of its members have looked better so far than several of the additions I made to the club during the winter."

"I paid a lot of money to build up the team this year but if my 1926 men prove to be better players, they will get the call, regardless of box office values. Fundamentally I am in the game to make money but in reality what I am trying to do is win the pennant. And, if I succeed the box office will take care of itself. All I want to say now is that I have reached no definite conclusions about the respective abilities of the men under me and that my line up has not been picked in advance."

Collins says that the leg injury which has threatened to send him into retirement has bothered him not at all this spring; yet Eddie simply can't seem to get around. Cobb has been troubled by a lame back but, even so, his failure to hit is one of the abiding mysteries of the trip. He hit two yesterday, however, just before Umpire Wilson made him hit the air.

Both Cobb and Collins vow that they will be ready to start the season at top speed and then increase the pace.

The ball club is top heavy with talent and when you have too many good players around, you generally have too many problems. It is a club with two men for every position.

Brannom is the regular first baseman at the moment. He isn't hitting but his fielding is above reproach. Jim Poole, the 1926 model, is ready and willing to start.

The second base duel seems to be all Bishop as against Collins. Max, of Baltimore, has been hitting and fielding like the greatest second baseman in the League.

At short stop, Chick Galloway, the Clinton, S. C., specimen, is said to have brought himself back to the speed he knew five years ago when some thought him the best in baseball. Boley has done everything asked of him except to knock some one's cap off with an occasional base hit.

Doesn't This Justify Henry Ford's Faith in American Good Sense?

"You ask me why I bought a Ford," says a plain-spoken man. "It's because I'd rather have the meat of a nut than the shell—rather money in the bank than a flashy car and an overdue bill at the grocer's."

The improved Ford is bigger value than ever—all models finished in Pyroxylin—an almost indestructible satin finish—does not show sand or water spots—5 beautiful colors.
